

CHARRON'S COURSE REBUTES AMERICANS.

Yankee Automobilists All Say if He Was a Sportsman He Would Race Winton for the Journal's Cup and Not Demand a Stake.

THROUGHOUT the country the interest in automobilism is unabated. There is, however, a general feeling of disappointment and irritation over the hitch in the proposed international race, due to Charron's demand for a 100,000 franc bet before he will agree to come to this country and speed his Panhard motor car against Winton.

CHICAGO AUTOMOBILISTS
ALL AGAINST CHARRON.
They Say He is a Professional and Not a Sportsman, or He Would Race for a Trophy.

Chicago, June 23.—Chicago automobile enthusiasts do not hesitate to indorse Winton's position. They also declare Charron is not acting very much like a genuine sportsman, as that term is understood here, in demanding a money stake.

C. Fred Kimball says: "I am not surprised that the Paris Herald takes the position it does. Though owned by an American, the paper is anything but American in its policy. In exalting Charron and attacking Winton it is simply following its old course. Charron, through his long handling of automobiles, no doubt thinks he will have a clutch in a race with the less experienced American, and with natural French thrift, wants to get everything possible out of it. I don't know whether he is classed as a professional over there or not; he certainly would be regarded as one in this country if he raced for money. He is very likely to be a professional, and the French automobile manufacturers, and if he cares to enter a race with an American to prove which machine is the better, he certainly ought to be willing to come to this country for his expenses."

C. E. Woods says: "The automobile is viewed in France and America from different standpoints. There it is looked upon simply as a vehicle of pleasure; here it is regarded from a utility standpoint. The introduction of a purely professional race must be for a cup or some similar emblem. The introduction of a purely professional race must be for a cup or some similar emblem. The introduction of a purely professional race must be for a cup or some similar emblem."

H. George Lytton says: "If Mr. Charron

BRADY CLINCHES HIS GRIP ON BROOKLYN.

The Flower Syndicate, of which Anthony N. Brady is the leader, not only controls the electric system of passenger transportation in Brooklyn, but has now acquired control, apparently beyond any prospect of competition, of the vast field of electric lighting, heating and power service in that borough.

The syndicate's latest acquisition, the Amsterdam Electric Light and Power Company, is all that is needed apparently to enable Mr. Brady and his associates to hold Brooklyn in their grasp.

It was less the idea of buying up a dangerous competitor than that of obtaining a franchise that will be valuable in the future that impelled the syndicate to buy the Amsterdam Company. This corporation's franchise, granted by the old city of Brooklyn, in perpetuity, to lay conduits or to string wires in any street in

JEKYL SANDS TO HAVE A RIVAL.

Rich Sportsmen Plan to Buy a New Southern Club Ground.

Jekyl Island, which is probably the most fashionable resort in the South, if not in America, is to have a rival. Men have banded together to purchase another island, and enlist the support of prominent men to establish a recreation ground that will make Jekyl Island look like a Kansas town after a cyclone.

The new resort is Spring Island, situated at the head of Port Royal Harbor, South Carolina, and formed by the junction of Broad and Colleton rivers with the bay. It is six miles long by from one to two miles wide, and contains 6,036 acres.

The present owner is Colonel Thomas Martin, of Bluffton, S. C., well known throughout the State as a lawyer and sportsman. For several years he has had the little principality as a private preserve, and has stocked it with all manner of game.

Quail, rabbits and squirrels abound there are deer, and the marshes are the feeding ground for thousands of ducks. Fish of all sorts are to be caught in the waters around the island.

Altogether it is such a paradise for sportsmen that the naval officers, from Rear Admiral Jewett down to the heroes of the Spanish war, who have enjoyed its privileges, have never grown weary of telling of enjoyable days of sport.

Spring Island, or, as it used to be known, Edwards's or Spring Island, Barony, was formerly a grant from George III. to Sir John Colleton, of Colleton, S. C., and remained in his family until Colonel Martin purchased it.

Mitchell Depew, a nephew of the Senator-elect, Lewis T. Duryea, president of the National Sportsmen's Club, George A. Hayes, of Buffalo; former Governor John Gay Byrnes, of South Carolina; former Attorney-General William A. Barber, and W. Hampton de Fontaine, a broker of this city, are among those interested.

Sportsmen from the Racquet, Metropolitan, Westchester and other clubs of this city will be asked to join, and invitations will be extended to men in the leading clubs of Philadelphia and Baltimore.

The membership of the club will be limited to eighty, and the initiation fee will be $5,000, so that there is no danger of this rival to Jekyl becoming a cheap place. Membership in Jekyl now costs about $20,000. The new club intends to spend $200,000 on improvements of the island, including a clubhouse, kitchen, stables and yacht dock, and it is expected that they will be ready for the shooting season next fall.

Spring Island is one of the few islands on the southern Atlantic coast owned by one individual. It is probably the largest island in the possession of an American.

HER FOR 16 DAYS.

Then Amella Uta Woke Up Crying Out: "Stop the Horse!"

ASKED FOR HER DINNER.
Mother, in Awe, Saw Her Daughter Arise from Her Long, Strange Illness.

After lying in a swoon for sixteen days, Amella Uta came to her senses yesterday, and, tossing her arms above her head, cried: "Catch the horse, Chris! Stop him quick!"

Her mind had begun to work like a watch that has been stopped, without reference to the intervening period. The wounds on her face had healed, yet she thought that she had just been thrown out of the wagon.

"My! I'm hungry!" she continued. "It must be time to go home to dinner."

She had eaten nothing since June 7. Small quantities of liquid nourishment had been administered to her from time to time by Dr. J. H. B. Denton, of Freeport, who had called to see her every day, wondering that she continued to live, and deeply impressed with the remarkable character of the case that had fallen into his hands.

Mrs. Uta, a Freeport farmer's wife, was beside herself with delight at hearing again the voice of her daughter, who had been for so long like one in a tomb. Too good to speak, she threw her arms round the girl's neck.

Her eyes were very wide open and had a vague immobility of expression. This softened gradually, however, as she began to notice her surroundings. When she realized at length that she was in bed in her own room, she frowned.

"How long have I been home, mother? What time is it? Was Chris hurt? Did he catch the horse?"

"The girl's questions continued: 'Has there been a doctor here already? What time is it? I feel as if I had been on a long journey. When did you come home? Is my head like a train on a long journey? It's morning now, mother, and it was afternoon when the horses ran away. What day is this?'

"This is Friday," answered Mrs. Uta. "Mother! Have I been asleep since Wednesday?"

"Three Wednesdays," said Mrs. Uta, counting on her fingers. "It is sixteen days now."

Uta looked frightened at that, and for a long time she was silent, trying to remember. But all she could think of was the rushing of a train on a long journey. When the doctor came, she was sagacious and said it was a remarkable case of cerebral shock. His patient was setting up last night, pale and thin, very glad to have returned from that vague journey and to have something to eat.

KILLS HIS YOUNG WIFE AND ENDS HIS OWN LIFE.
Quarrelsome Jersey City Man Shoots the Woman Who Refuses to Live with Him.

Tommaso DiIocella, always quarrelsome, yesterday on a crowded street in Jersey City shot and killed his wife of seven months, and then killed himself.

The murderer was thirty-three years old, his wife, Margaret, eighteen. They had been separated three months, yesterday's tragedy being caused by Mrs. DiIocella refusing to return to her husband.

From the time they were married the husband was intensely jealous. His wife, once an exceedingly handsome brunette, had many admirers.

Mrs. DiIocella lately had been staying with her sister, Mrs. Vittoria Colosimo, at No. 424 Henderson street.

Shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday Mrs. DiIocella left the house, and half way up the block encountered her husband. He asked her to return to him and she refused.

Then DiIocella drew a revolver and fired. Three more struck her in the head. Then he shot a bullet into his own brain. Both were dead when picked up.

The sounds of the shots brought several thousand curious people to the scene.

NEW JOB FOR COLONEL SAGE.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the House of Refuge yesterday, Colonel Omar V. Sage, ex-warden of Sing Sing prison, was unanimously elected superintendent of the institution.

Mr. Sage will take the office October 1, when the term of E. N. Carpenter ends. It is said he will institute several important reforms.

Walker, of Williams and Walker, Is a Benedict.

There was excitement among the fair sex of the colored population yesterday when they heard that the Beau Brummel of the ebony aristocracy and well-known comedian, George Walker, of the firm of Williams and Walker company, the young and beautiful bride, Miss Ada Overton, who was last season the sobriette of the Williams and Walker company. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Bishop, of St. Philip's Church.

Notes of Society.

Mrs. Jules Reynal will spend the month of August at Har Haden.

Work has been commenced on the $50,000 clubhouse for the Apawamis Golf Club, at Bay.

Joseph Park has a hobby for rare coins, and at his Bay country seat some of the finest specimens along the northern shore of the Sound may be found.

The Misses Weatherbees, daughters of E. H. Weatherbees, are becoming excellent horse riders, and may be daily seen galloping along the Boston Post Road.

It was reported at New Rochelle yesterday that O. Oliver Iselin intended to bring his new yacht Columbia there on July 1. The yacht will be anchored in Echo Bay, near the Iselin mansion, on Premium Point.

Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and his bride are spending a few days at the Hotel Marlborough. If rumor may be believed, they will probably occupy Marble House, at Newport, this summer, pending a decision by the State of New York, which is too small for entertaining.

The coaching parade to be held at Bay this afternoon promises to draw a large crowd. Society folk from all parts of the county, C. Stewart Schuch, who has charge of the arrangements, expects there will be thirty-four teams and landau in line.

A private staircase will be built this summer at the Waldorf-Astoria, which will be appreciated by the patrons of the ball room. It will go on the thirty-third street side of the big hotel, near the dining room, and will lead directly to the main foyer, affording greater privacy for guests.

There were a number of well-known people in town yesterday. Creighton Webb was seen sunbathing through the corridors of the Waldorf-Astoria, where De Courcy Forbes, Fred Beach and "Carter" Hollister, of the Palm Garden, were also seen. Mrs. Charles Mackay was also seen driving together in Fifth street. The Mackays have arranged to spend a few days at the Waldorf next week.

Society's chief amusement in town just now is visiting the different rock gardens, for June weddings are becoming scarce, and the few that are left will nearly all be held in the country. Miss Emma S. Knight will be married today at Sharon, Conn., and Miss Clara Mosey's wedding to Mr. Teller is to take place next Thursday. Thursday next the date arranged for the marriage of Miss Pauline Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Chapin, to Mr. William McKim.

GIRL IN COURT HUGS SLAYER OF A GIRL.

Frank Nulty, the Boy Murderer, and His Victim's Mother.

This nineteen-year-old slayer of his sweetheart is on trial for his life. In a letter to the girl's father he confessed that his motive was pride. He did not want his friend to scoff at him for losing the love of the girl.

After Testifying Against a Boy Murderer She Cares Him.

FRANK NULTY ON TRIAL.

Witnesses Say He Often Beat His Sweetheart and Threatened to Kill Her.

The incidents in the lives of the boy, Frank J. Nulty, and the girl, Mamie Remley, which immediately preceded her death from a pistol wound at the hands of Nulty last Christmas Day, were brought out at his trial for murder in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court yesterday.

Nulty, nineteen years old, fired four bullets into the body of the girl he loved and one into his own brain. Mamie Remley was only seventeen. The boy's wound left his left side paralyzed.

There were several girl friends of Mamie and Frank called to the stand. They told of visits to dancing pavilions with Nulty and other young fellows and of Nulty's insane jealousy.

Nulty, they said, frequently threatened to kill Mamie—often displayed a revolver—and on several occasions struck her with his fists.

NO COPYRIGHT ON "COLONIAL DAMES."

So Say Lawyers and Witnesses for Rival Organizations in the Supreme Court.

The Colonial Dames of America, who are trying to take the social seals of the Colonial Dames of the State of New York, and of the National Society of Colonial Dames by getting an injunction restraining them from using the title "Colonial Dames," resubmitted the Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Booktraver.

John M. Bowers, the counsel for the defense, said that there could be no proprietary interest in the title "Colonial Dames." He read a lot of poetry showing that the word "Dames" was a long established word, and that if any copyright ever existed on it it has expired long since.

He called to the witness stand Mrs. Emily McKim Reed, of Baltimore, a member of the National Society of Colonial Dames, who testified that she had sworn that "Colonial Dames" had no meaning, and if it had she didn't know what it meant when the case was adjourned until Monday.

Mary Parrot, forty-five years of age, of No. 98 Ferry street, Woodhull, while crossing Atlantic avenue, at Third street, yesterday afternoon, was run over by a Long Island train and killed.

GERRY MEETS REBUFF AT LAW.

His Society Must Submit to State Charities Inspection.

ITS WORK INDORSED.
Witnesses Tell Referee Stickney Its Operations Are a Public Boon.

Elbridge T. Gerry, who controls the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, met with a rebuff yesterday in the shape of a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, which holds that the society is subject to visitation by the Board of Charities. The motion for a mandamus, made on behalf of the Board, was granted.

Mr. Gerry, who is investigating himself and, incidentally, his society, continued his labors in that direction yesterday. It was the third session of the hearing, and went on in the office of Albert Stickney, at No. 31 Nassau street, who has been appointed referee by Justice Scott, of the Supreme Bench, to look into the society's affairs at the request of two of its trustees.

The proceedings began with the consideration of a request from George L. Sterling, who represented the Corporation Counsel, for a copy of the minutes of the last session. His request was granted.

Ex-Chief of Police McCullagh testified that he believed the society to be a great public boon. He said it was invaluable to his office in preparing cases for trial, and that no bureau could be established in the District-Attorney's office that would do the work as well.

Ex-Chief of Police McCullagh testified that he had always found co-operation with the society valuable when he was at the head of the Police Department. He felt satisfied that no bureau could be established at Police Headquarters that could do the work with the same efficiency.

When Magistrate Denen, Judge Frank House and Vernon N. Davis had each told what a good thing the society was, Mr. Gerry took the stand and his counsel, Du Laney Nicol, invited the reporters present to ask any questions they chose. In response to questions Mr. Gerry said the society had never asked to be exempt from taxation. He denied the story that he had deeded the property at No. 108 and 110 West Forty-first street to St. Luke's Church, that he might be exempt from taxation under the Religious Corporation act.

Mr. Gerry said that the twenty-five annual meal paid Superintendent Jenkins for each meal furnished a child paid for something else. The hearing went over until next Friday at 11 o'clock.
